

Frontpage III

CS 102

Nov. 16, 2001

In this lab we start over and learn how to use FrontPage the easy way.

1. Create an images folder.

Save an image into it.

2. Open your web in FrontPage and change your password.

3. Use FrontPage to create two pages. Use the first page (file name `index`) to briefly describe yourself. Include two links: one to Goucher's web site and one to your second page (you can't make this link until you've created the second page).

The second page should include just an image with a little bit of text. The file name doesn't matter — choose any name.

4. Apply background and text formatting and set titles for your pages.

5. When you've finished, call me over to have a look.

After I've OK'ed your work, delete the pages and image.
